Man's Unreasonableness is often as great as woman's. But Thomas S. Austin, manager of the "Republican" of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife for female trouble. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick she could hardly leave her bed and five (5) physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters she was perfectly cured and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by the Red Cross Pharmacy and Parlor Drug Store. Price 50c.

Pure cocoa of good quality is of a rich red-brown color. When it is so dark as to appear almost black it is a sure sign that it has been tampered with in the making, or that it was made from cocoa beans of a poor quality. The black color itself does not show strength at all, as some foreign manufacturers pretend, it shows that harmful alkaline additions have been made at some stage of the process, or that the cocoa has been artificially colored with coal-tar dyes or lamp-black. As the powdered cocoa is sold in packages, the simplest and most practical way for the average housekeeper to escape being imposed upon is to buy goods bearing the name and trade-mark of a well known and reputable manufacturer. The special value of the Walter Baker cocoa lies in the fact that not only is it a pure article with a most delicious flavor, made by a scientific blending of the best beans grown in different parts of the world, but it is found to be an extraordinary degree of goodness, being driven in the last stage through a sieve with ten thousand meshes to the square inch, so as to produce the greatest possible degree of solubility.

TALK OF THE TOWN.

Junk Dealer Shipped 7,000 to Boston
Last Month.

Saco, Me., Nov. 9.—S. M. Solmer, a junk dealer of this city, says he purchased in Saco and Biddeford and shipped to Boston in October 3,800 jugs which had contained liquor. He estimated at 7,000 the total number of jugs returned to Boston by freight and express from here last month.

The traffic in jugs has greatly increased, he says, since the passage of the Sturgis law.

D. F. DAVIS' UNUSUAL OFFER.

"It isn't often that I have faith enough in the medicine put up by other people to be willing to offer to refund the money if it does not cure," said D. F.
Davis to a Times man who dropped into his store, "but I am glad to sell Dr.
Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia on that basis."

"The Dr. Howard company, in order to get a quick introductory sale, authorizes me to sell their regular fifty-cent bottles at half-price, 25 cents, and although I have sold a lot of it, and have guaranteed every package, not one has been brought back as unsatisfactory."

"One great advantage of this specific," he continued, "is its small dose and convenient form. There are sixty doses in a vial that can be carried in the vest pocket or purse, and every one has remedial power than a big pill or tablet or a tumbler of mineral water."

"I am still selling the specific at half-price, although I cannot tell how long I shall be able to do so, and anyone who is subject to constipation, sick headache, dizziness, liver trouble, indigestion, or a general played-out condition, ought to take advantage of this chance. You can tell your readers that if they are not satisfied with the specific they can come right back to my store and I will cheerfully refund their money."

a fine line of fancy work of all kinds, aprons, home made candies, popcorn and articles to please those of all ages. A short entertainment will be given. Supper and entertainment 25c. Entertainment alone 10c.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Parents are particularly requested to instruct their children against doing anything in any way that will disgrace or destroy the street signs that have been put up recently. It has come to our notice that there are quite a few of the signs defaced and the enamel broken by boys throwing stones. The City Council have therefore caused this notice and warning to be published to the effect that any boys caught throwing stones at, or in any other way doing anything that will tend to destroy or deface any street sign in the city, will be punished as the law provides.
By order of the City Council.

New Public Libraries in Vermont.

In the bulletin of the Vermont library commission, just issued, it is announced that within the past few months free libraries have been started in nine towns. The town, with the appropriations for their support follow: Vernon, $25; Cornwall, $25; Moretown, $25; Shelburne, $25; Waterbury, $100; Forburg, $100; Brunswick, $100; Williston, $25; West Fairlee, $25.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

We want a wide-awake man in this locality to actively represent us in promoting the sales of the Wheeler & Wilson sewing machine.

This machine is backed by fifty-eight years of success; some of the early machines built by this company are giving faithful service to-day.

We can offer exceptional inducements to some one in this locality who can command a horse and wagon and devote his time to advancing the sales of our product.

Energetic men will find our proposition a money maker, capable of development into a permanent and profitable business.

The Understrapper

[Original.]

The editorial staff of the Pacific Magazine consisted of, first, the editor and proprietor, Edward Farnham, capitalist and literature; two readers and a young man named Arthur Otis, who did odd jobs in the "making up" that were not considered of sufficient importance to take up the time of the others. The last named was the first of the lot to take a wife and was struggling along on a starvation salary. He was a quiet, inoffensive young fellow and not considered of sufficient talents to make his way to a better position.

One day Mr. Farnham laid a manuscript novel on Otis' desk and said:
"There's a novel by Donald Fox. I want you to go over it and get it ready for the printer." Mr. Farnham usually gave his orders, to Otis especially, without comment, but today he was very much pleased and added:
"We must begin that in May. I've been keeping a place for it. Anything by Fox will increase the circulation 50 per cent. It ought to. It cost 10 cents a word for the serial right alone. This is the best thing, in my judgment, he's ever done; a new departure; not a bit in his usual style."

Otis never made a reply to anything the head of the concern said. He took the manuscript and began to work upon it immediately. The next day he took it to his chief and pointed out what he considered a defect, suggesting that it be referred back to the author to be changed. Mr. Farnham scowled, examined the pages referred to and told Otis that he was not employed to tell eminent writers how to write novels. Otis pocketed the snub and sneaked back to his desk.

When Otis had concluded his work he laid the manuscript on Mr. Farnham's desk and remarked:
"I see, sir, that the work is not finished."

"Mr. Fox has promised to have it all in by the required time. We shall not be delayed."

"But, sir," said the clerk, as a shade of anxiety passed over his face, "don't you fear that if anything should happen to Mr. Fox?"

"Well," said manager in icy tones.
"Could any one else finish it?"

"No, but I'm going to take the risk."

In due time the story appeared, and its reception was far beyond what the manager had looked for. The criticisms were fine, all critics noting the new departure of the author. It suggested the case of "The Cloister and the Heath" by Charles Reade, which is unlike any of its author's other works.
Mr. Farnham was jubilant.

One day when the story had been running six months Otis noticed a gentleman, who he was told, was the celebrated Donald Fox, talking with the manager. After the visitor had gone Mr. Farnham brought a package to Otis' desk.

"The closing chapters of Fox's great novel," he said. "Prepare them for issue."

The next morning Otis stood by his chief's desk waiting permission to speak.

"Well?" said the manager.
"Have you read these chapters of Mr. Fox's novel?"

"No."

"They are entirely unlike the rest.
The public will not believe Mr. Fox wrote them. They are very abrupt."

It was on the chief's tongue to tell his subordinate to attend to his own business, but the last words changed the impulse. Since the author was to be paid 10 cents a word for the work, it would not be to his interest to close it abruptly.

"Leave it," said the chief.

For the next few days Otis sat at his desk surrounded by a cyclone. From what he overheard he judged that Fox had confessed that he had hired a literary man who had done some good work to write the story at 5 cents a word. The author had been taken ill and died when the work was about two-thirds finished. Fox had hurriedly written the last chapters himself.

As soon as he gathered this information Otis walked humbly to the chief's desk.

"Would you like, sir, Mr. Fox's novel continued in the same vein as the earlier chapters?"

"Like it? We're in the biggest hole!"— He stopped short. He remembered that Otis had warned him of this very possibility.

"Was there any understanding with Mr. Fox as to the length of the story?" asked Otis.

Farnham looked at the young man with amazement. None of his employees had ever dared ask him about the terms of his contracts before.

"Do you know your business?"

"Yes, sir. But—"

"Well do it, and let other people's business alone."

"I've understood that Mr. Fox was to get 10 cents a word and that he sub-let the work for 5 cents a word, but I don't know how long the story was to be."

"Well, sir, why should you know?"

"Because—the fact is, Mr. Farnham, I'm interested."

"Interested? You impudent!"

"Yes, sir; peculiarly interested. You see, Mr. Farnham, Mr. Fox got to 10 cents a word and sublet it to Andy Nichols at 5 cents. Nichols sublet it to me at 2 cents a word. That's pretty poor pay, you know, but if I'm to be permitted to string it out I can make a good thing after all."

There was a dead silence in the editorial rooms for thirty seconds. Then the chief said:
"Run it to suit yourself at 10 cents a word."

And that's how Arthur Otis got his start in literature.

MUST BELIEVE IT

When Well Known Barre People Tell
It So Plainly.

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen of Barre the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every lackluster sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading.

G. A. Churchill, contractor and builder, residence 40 Merchant street, says: "I gave an endorsement for publication in our Barre papers in the winter of 1907, which stated that Doan's Kidney Pills, sold at E. A. Drown's drug store, had acted with me as represented, and I recommended them to any resident needing a remedy for his kidneys. Since that time I have had no reason to change my opinion and you are welcome to again use my original endorsement so that others may know what to do if troubled with a steady pain across the back like I had for two years—one that prevented me from remaining in any position for any length of time, which was always noticeable in the morning and caused me annoyance to dress myself, for which I used physicians' treatments and a great many medicines, but never received any permanent benefit. I cannot remember whether I took two or three boxes, but this I know, I have never had occasion to use the preparation since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foreign: M. H. B. Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

WILL CONSTRUCT A GAS PLANT.

A Philadelphia Syndicate to Install One at White River Junction.

White River Junction, Nov. 9.—After taking legal advice in the matter, the selectmen of the town of Hartford have given permission to a syndicate at whose head is Alfred G. Law, of Philadelphia, to construct a plant in town to supply gas for illumination, heat, and power; and the use of the streets for laying pipes to convey gas for these purposes. The plant may be completed in nine months, but it is guaranteed to be in sixteen months from the signing of the agreement. The company will have no exclusive right within the town to manufacture gas or to use the streets in connection with their plant. The village and several others in the vicinity is now lighted by the Mascoma Electric Light & Gas Co., which thus far has operated no gas system.

Body That of Portland, Me., Man.

Rome, Nov. 9.—A body recently found near Porto D'Anzio, on the Mediterranean coast, it now appears, was that of W. H. Harris of Portland, Me.
He was about sixty years old. Among the papers found with the body was a notebook of the Babbit Iron Foundry of Portland.
